

Call for Papers: International Conference at Loyola University Andalusia, 20-21 January 2020

The Department of Law of Loyola University Andalusia will be hosting an International Conference on 20-21 January 2020 in Seville, Spain, to discuss the impact of digitalization.

The Conference which will revolve around five major thematic areas from a multi-disciplinary approach, will also include panels on digitalization and Private International Law.

This International Conference will be a unique opportunity to discuss the new technological and digital challenges with an outstanding group of experts from different fields and a great venue to create and consolidate scientific and collaborative networks. Some of the experts who have already confirmed their participation include professors from Cornell, Harvard and other universities worldwide, officials from the United Nations, UNIDROIT, judges, members of the EU Commission expert groups, lawyers and ICT professionals.

Senior and junior scholars (including Ph.D. students) and professionals at all stages of their careers are invited to submit abstracts on some of the following, fairly broad, topics or any other related issues of novel and ground-breaking character: Ability of the basic principles of private international law to adapt to the immateriality of the digital space and new approaches to the theory of private international law in the digital context.

SUBMISSION PROCEDURE AND TIMELINE

- We invite authors to submit extended abstracts of a minimum of 800 words with the author's name, affiliation and an updated CV including contact details to the conference directors, in the item "Documents" on the website: www.ict2020.es. All submissions may be written in either English or Spanish.

- The submitted abstracts will be assessed and selected by the Conference's international scientific committee. In addition to the quality of the proposals, special consideration will be given to gender balance and the representation of professionals, associations and social partners in the different panels.
- The deadline for submitting proposals is 15 October 2019.
- Authors of selected abstracts for the Conference will be notified by 15 November 2019.
- The deadline for submitting the final draft paper (3,000-5,000 words) is 10 January 2020. A 'no paper – no podium' strict policy applies.
- The Conference will be held at the Dos Hermanas campus of Loyola University Andalusia, in Seville, on 20-21 January 2020.
- Authors of accepted abstracts are expected to bear the costs of their own travel and accommodation.
- The Conference directors are planning to publish the most relevant papers presented in the conference.
- The deadline for submitting the final version of the selected papers (6,000-8,000 words) will be 21 February 2020. Further information about the publication process will be conveyed to selected proposal authors in due course.
