Conference on "The CISG at Middle Age" at the University of Pittsburgh School of Law

On March 22-23, 2019, the Center for International Legal Education (CILE) at the University of Pittsburgh School of Law will host an international conference on the United Nations Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods ("CISG"). The conference is entitled "The CISG at Middle Age." It will be held in the Teplitz Memorial Courtroom of the Barco Law Building.

On Friday morning, panelists will discuss topics dealing with "The Past of the CISG: Its Successes and Failures." This session will honor the memory of Peter Schechtriem and his suggestion that the CISG could provide "an International Linqua Franca." The Friday afternoon panels will consider "The Present of the CISG: Is Uniform Interpretation Possible?," honoring the memory of John Honnold and his exhortation towards "Resisting the Homeward Trend." A dinner on Friday evening will feature a keynote address by Pitt Emeritus Professor Harry Flechtner on "The Past, Present and Future of the CISG (and Other Uniform Commercial Law Initiatives)." Saturday morning's panels will focus on "The Future of the CISG: Have we come to Praise it or Bury it?"

The conference presents the opportunity to consider whether the widespread state ratification of the CISG indicates success in international law development, or whether the common practice of opting out of the CISG in private contracts demonstrates that its impact has been limited at best.

Conference speakers include: Ronald Brand (University of Pittsburgh), Petra Butler (Victoria University Wellington), Susanna Cook (Cohen & Grigsby), John Coyle (University of North Carolina), Milena Djordjevic (University of Belgrade), Johan Erauw (University of Ghent), Harry Flechtner (University of Pittsburgh), Henry Gabriel (Elon University), Jack Graves (Touro University), Joseph Gulino (Diaz, Reus & Targ), Stefan Kröll (Bucerius University), Ulrich Magnus (University of Hamburg), Francesco Mazotta (International Contract Manual), Chiara Giavannucci (University of Bologna), Vjosa Osmani (University of Pristina), Alejandro Osuna, (Tijuana, Mexico), Francesca Ragno (University of Verona),

Ingeborg Schwenzer (University of Basel), Nina Tepic (University of Zagreb), Marco Torsello (University of Verona), Mark Walter (DAI Inc)

A link to more information on the conference, including additional links to the program and registration can be found here.