

Conference Announcement: The Role of Ethics in International Law

The Role of Ethics in International Law

Event Information

Friday, November 13, 2009 / 8:30 AM

Tillar House/Cosmos Club

Washington, D.C.

Each year, the International Legal Theory Interest Group of the American Society of International Law convenes a special conference to consider an important theoretical issue in international law. This year, the conference will focus on the Role of Ethics in International Law. Special attention will be paid both to the role of ethics in public and private international law, as well as to normative and theoretical perspectives. The panels will feature the following distinguished scholars.

The Role of Ethics in Public International Law

Oona A. Hathaway, Yale Law School

Mary Ellen O'Connell, Notre Dame Law School

Edward T. Swain, George Washington University Law School

The Role of Ethics in Private International Law

Lea Brilmayer, Yale Law School

Perry Dane, Rutgers School of Law

Dean Symeon C. Symeonides, Willamette University College of Law
