

The “Conflicts Revolution”

With thanks to one of our readers, here is a decision that may be of interest. The New York Court of Appeals recently decided a case that addresses many of the basic tort fact patterns that that started the way to the “conflicts revolution” in the 1950s and 1960s. Interestingly, the court is split on how to decide some of these issues, even after all these years.