Job Vacancy at the Asser Institute (the Netherlands)

The Asser Institute in The Hague (the Netherlands) is looking for a Researcher in Private International Law (full time – 38 hours per week). The successful candidate is expected to start preferably from 1 November 2018 and will be conducting research on the Brussels I bis Regulation as part of a DG JUST research project, among other things. He or she will strengthen the research capacity of the Asser Institute in the area of private international law, working within its Research Strand on adequate dispute settlement, and in the context of the Institute's Strategic Research Agenda.

Applications must be submitted before 7 September 2018.

Remuneration depends on the actual level of education, experience and knowledge with a maximum of € 4,852.- gross per month based on a full time equivalent (38 hours). Secondary benefits at Dutch universities are attractive and include 8% holiday allowance and an 8.3% year-end allowance.

Applicants are expected to be fluent in Dutch (preferably native) and English. In addition, applicants should have earned a PhD in private international law and have post-doctoral research experience, among other things.

Further information is available here.