

9th CPLJ Webinar - 1 April 2022

Comparative Procedural Law and Justice (CPLJ) is a global project of the Max Planck Institute Luxembourg for Procedural Law, with the support of the Luxembourg National Research Fund (019/13946847), involving more than one hundred scholars from all over the world.

CPLJ is envisioned as a comprehensive study of comparative civil procedural law and civil dispute resolution schemes in the contemporary world. It aims at understanding procedural rules in their cultural context, as well as at highlighting workable approaches to the resolution of civil disputes.

In this framework, the Max Planck Institute Luxembourg for Procedural Law will host its 9th CPLJ Webinar on 1 April 2022, 3:00 - 5:00 pm (CET).

The programme reads as follows:

Russell Miller - Senior Research Fellow and Head of Max Planck Law, J.B. Stombock Professor of Law (W&L University - Virginia)

Comparing Comparisons: A Survey of Approaches to Comparative Law

The webinar is an open event. For more information and to register see here.

(Image credits: Rijksmuseum, Amsterdam)