

Accountability of Transnational Organisations

On Wednesday, 16 November 2022, Professor Philippa Webb and Associate Professor Rishi Gulati will host a (hybrid) conference on “Accountability of Transnational ORgnisations” at King’s College London.

The conference will bring together academics, practitioners, and international organisation officials to discuss key developments around the legal accountability of transnational institutions.

The use of the term ‘transnational’ is deliberate. The aim is not just to consider accountability concerns relating to public international organisations (IOs), but also ones relevant to multinational corporations (MNCs) and non-governmental organisations (NGOs). The focus is on legal accountability, including the notion of access to justice for alleged victims of institutional conduct and due diligence obligations increasingly imposed on transnational institutions.

If interested, please register below:

<https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/accountability-of-transnational-organisations-conference-tickets-441537238767?aff=ebdssbdestsearch>