

Online conference on Sustainable Finance in European Jurisdictions, 29 and 30 April 2022

The Ferenc Mádln Institute of Comparative Law, Justus Liebig University Giessen and Vienna University of Economics and Business (WU) are organizing the conference Sustainable Finance in European Jurisdictions, with the aim of investigating from a comparative law perspective the regulation underpinning the capital flow into sustainable enterprises. The conference will take place at the Hungarian Academy of Sciences in Budapest on 29 and 30 April 2022 and will also be transmitted via Zoom.

The conference brings together academics to present their findings on 14 different European jurisdictions, seeking to discuss regulation in order to address inconsistencies and identify the path forward. As the challenges faced in this field are global, the necessity for international collaboration appears crucial. Identifying the national regulatory interests and eventual conflicts pave the way to reform and harmonisation.

Attendance is free of charge, however prior registration is mandatory.

See the conference agenda and registration form.