

Recording of Panel Discussion on Amendments to China's Civil Procedure Law

On December 30, 2022, the Chinese legislator, the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, published a draft of the Civil Procedure Law Amendment for public consultation. The draft suggested important amendments to procedures in foreign-related cases including jurisdiction, service, taking evidence, forum non-convenience, lis pendens, and judgment recognition and enforcement.

The Berkeley Center for Law and Technology organized a panel discussion on the draft. The program is now available to watch for free on its B-CLE platform. Linked below is access to the program's recording:
