

UEA Law School's Second Podcast Series on Transnational Law

Written by Rishi Gulati

After a highly successful first series, all episodes of UEA Law School's Second Podcast Series hosted by Rishi Gulati are now available on leading platforms, including on Apple Podcasts, Spotify and SoundCloud. The second series consists of several interesting discussions on key transnational concerns with experts from around the world.

There are two episodes on climate change litigation. Tyndall Centre PhD researcher Millie Prosser and Friends of The Earth Lawyer and PhD researcher Acland Bryant are joined by the renowned environmental lawyer David Wolfe KC and Norwich-based climate litigator Dr Andrew Boswell to discuss the opportunities and limitations in UK climate change litigation in the context of judicial review, and Rishi Gulati is joined by Dr Dalia Palombo on the potential impact of the landmark April 2024 European Court of Human Rights climate change decisions on corporations.

In other episodes, there are conversations between the host and Mr William Rook on sports and human rights, with Dr Nikos Skoutaris on state secession, and with Dr Hansong Li on the history & current political climate of the Indo-Pacific.

The series also consists of recordings from two fascinating events. One of the episode presents the Earlham Law Lecture 2024 by Professor Sarah Green, Law Commissioner for Commercial and Common Law "on the topic: Of Digital Assets and Sausages: Confessions of a Law Commissioner". Another episode brings to listeners the launch of the Elgar Companion to the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law which includes remarks from Ms Anna Joubin-Bret, Secretary of the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law, and Director at the International Trade Law Division of the Office of Legal Affairs at the United Nations. Finally, one of the episodes is a conversation between Rishi Gulati and Ms Kate Lister, London-based singer and song-writer, voice coach, and graduate of the Guildhall School of Music, on presentation skills and voice tips.

The third series will return in September 2024 with several more fascinating discussions!
